Til underretning for Folketingets Europaudvalg vedlægges Videnskabsministeriets redegørelse om drøftelsen på det uformelle minister-møde i Hannover den 15. marts 2007 af forslaget til forordning om international roaming done by lowering the MTR multiplier more than proposed by the Presidency. We note that a multiplier of 2.0 has previously been mentioned during the discussions in Brussels.

At the retail level, the recent discussions have focused on a model, which includes a consumer protection tariff as well as an average retail charge. Denmark welcomes this combined model, as it ensures competition and innovation as well as reduces prices for the end-user.

On transparency in prices we have to find the right balance between the consumer's need to be able to make informed decisions and the risk of creating an overflow of information. Denmark is looking forward to continuing the discussions on this in the Council Working Group.

Besides these three points focus should be on reaching a swift agreement on this important regulation.
