ABSTRACT

On 15 September 2023, in line with the 2006 decision setting up the Cooperation and Verification Mechanism (CVM), the Commission formally closed the CVM, as Romania had satisfactorily fulfilled all the benchmarks and all recommendations set under the mechanism. Monitoring continues under the Rule of Law report, as for all EU Member States.

Steps were taken to complete the process initiated in view of taking into account the recommendations of the Venice Commission on the Justice Laws, with the focus now on implementation. A number of the disciplinary sanctions imposed by the Superior Council of the Magistracy have been annulled by the High Court of Cassation and Justice, showing that redress continues to be efficient. Efforts are ongoing to ensure adequate human resources for the justice system, although for the time being there are still a number of vacancies which could, over time, affect the quality and efficiency of justice. Significant efforts have been made to improve digitalisation within the justice system. Several additional steps have been taken to ensure the effective implementation of the Justice Laws.

The implementation of the 2021-2025 Anti-Corruption Strategy remains on track. The authorities maintain a positive track record in combating corruption, including as regards high-level corruption cases. However, the delayed legislative response on the statute of limitations continued to result in the closing of many corruption cases and the annulment of convictions. There have been further steps taken as regards the system for investigating and prosecuting corruption offences in the judiciary. A proposal to update the integrity framework has been submitted to the Ministry of Justice, but it does not cover revolving doors. There have been no further steps taken on introducing rules on lobbying for Members of Parliament. The National Integrity Agency continued to work efficiently on conflicts of interest, asset declarations and whistleblowing. The adoption of legislation to improve the transparency of political party financing remains pending. Public procurement remains a sector with a high risk of corruption, and as it is a high priority sector, steps are being taken to identify which areas and procedures are most prone to corruption in public procurement.

The functioning and effectiveness of the National Audiovisual Council is expected to be improved with the update of its technology systems. While information on the shareholding structure of companies holding audiovisual licenses is now public, it still appears difficult for the general public to know who ultimately owns media companies beyond the audiovisual sector. There is still a need to enhance the independent governance and editorial independence of public service media and lack of funding makes it difficult for public TV to fulfil its public service mandate. Despite a strong legal framework and the application of penalties, some political parties are reported to have increased their financing of private media for political advertising. The legal framework on access to information has not yet improved. Threats and instances of harassment against journalists remain an issue, and commercial pressure on editorial independence affects journalists' work.

Efforts are still needed to ensure effective public consultations as shortcomings persist. Considerable efforts are being made to increase the quality and transparency of the decision-making process; the government is still making frequent use of emergency ordinances, but their number is decreasing. Positive steps have been taken to obtain accreditation for two National Human Rights Institutions. Draft legislation and an upcoming new strategy could contribute to improve the situation of civil society organisations, which continue to face legal and financial challenges.

RECOMMENDATIONS

Overall, concerning the recommendations in the 2023 Rule of Law Report, Romania has made:

- Some further progress on completing the process initiated to take into account the recommendations in the opinion of the Venice Commission on the Justice Laws.
- Some further progress on ensuring adequate human resources for the justice system, including for the prosecution services, taking into account European standards on resources for the justice system.
- Some progress on taking measures, in particular at an operational level, to address remaining concerns about the investigation and prosecution of criminal offences in the judiciary, including as regards corruption offences, taking into account European standards.
- No progress on introducing rules on lobbying for Members of Parliament.
- No progress on strengthening the rules and mechanisms to enhance the independent governance and editorial independence of public service media taking into account European standards on public service media.
- No further progress on ensuring effective public consultations before the adoption of legislation.
- Some progress on obtaining the accreditation of a National Human Rights Institution taking into account the UN Paris Principles.

On this basis, and considering other developments that took place in the period of reference, and in addition to recalling the relevant commitments made under the Recovery and Resilience Plan, it is recommended to Romania to:

- Complete the process initiated in view of taking into account the recommendations of the Venice Commission on the Justice Laws, including through consultations and evaluations in view of further improving the Justice Laws at a next opportunity.
- Continue efforts to ensure adequate human resources for the justice system, including for the prosecution services, taking into account European standards on resources for the justice system.
- Take measures, in particular at an operational level, to ensure efficient investigation and prosecution of criminal offences in the judiciary, including as regards corruption offences, taking into account European standards.
- Introduce rules on lobbying for Members of Parliament.
- Step up efforts to strengthen the rules and mechanisms to enhance the independent governance and editorial independence of public service media taking into account European standards on public service media.
- Step up efforts to ensure effective public consultations before the adoption of legislation.
- Take forward the process for obtaining accreditation for two National Human Rights Institutions, taking into account the UN Paris Principles.

I. JUSTICE SYSTEM

The Romanian justice system is structured in four instances, both civil and military: the first instance county courts, the ordinary and specialised tribunals, the courts of appeal¹ and the High Court of Cassation and Justice. The High Court of Cassation and Justice judges first instance and appeal criminal cases for certain categories of persons², as well as appeal cases for certain civil and administrative cases. A fundamental role of this Court is to ensure the uniform interpretation and application of the law by the other courts. The Superior Council of Magistracy (SCM), tasked with guaranteeing judicial independence, is divided into two sections, the section for judges and the section for prosecutors. Each section has exclusive competence for the recruitment and management of the career of judges and prosecutors respectively and acts as a disciplinary court. The prosecution service is headed by the Prosecutor General of the Public Prosecutor's Office attached to the High Court of Cassation and Justice (HCCJ). The Public Prosecutor's Office includes specialised structures with special jurisdiction and organisation, the National Anti-Corruption Directorate (DNA) and the Directorate for Investigation and Combating Organised Crime and Terrorism (DIICOT), led by chief prosecutors³. There are also military prosecutorial offices. Romania participates in the European Public Prosecutor's Office (EPPO). The Romanian National Union of Bar Associations is a legal entity of public interest, comprising all 41 bars in Romania.

Independence

The level of perceived judicial independence in Romania continues to be average among both the general public and companies. Overall, 52% of the general population and 56% of companies perceive the level of independence of courts and judges to be 'fairly or very good' in 2024⁴. The perceived judicial independence among the general public has slightly increased in comparison with 2023 (51%) and has increased in comparison with 2020 (37%). The perceived judicial independence among companies remains at the same level as in 2023 (56%) and is still higher than in 2020 (53%)⁵.

² The Criminal Section of the High Court of Cassation and Justice hears, as a court of first instance, cases involving offences committed by senators, deputies, and Romanian members of the European Parliament, by members of the Government, by judges of the Constitutional Court, by members of the Superior Council of Magistracy, by judges of the High Court of Cassation and Justice, and by prosecutors of the Prosecutor's Office attached to the High Court of Cassation and Justice.

Some further progress was made on completing the process initiated in view of taking into account the recommendations of the Venice Commission on the Justice Laws, with the focus now on implementation. The 2023 Rule of Law Report recommended to Romania to '[c]omplete the process initiated in view of taking into account the recommendations contained in the opinion of the Venice Commission on the Justice Laws, in particular by finalising the assessment being carried out by the panel of high-level experts'⁶. This panel of high-level experts, set up by the Ministry of Justice to analyse how to implement the recommendations of the Venice Commission in the national legislative framework⁷, submitted its conclusions to the Ministry of Justice on 19 September 2023⁸. The report was published online by the Ministry in February 2024⁹. The conclusions presented by the panel of high-level experts fully support the Venice Commission's second recommendation to lengthen high ranking prosecutors' term in office, without the possibility of renewal, as well as the Venice Commission's third recommendation that the Prosecutor General should not be able to declare unlawful or unfounded any measure ordered by the prosecutors¹⁰. The experts do not, however, support the Venice Commission's first recommendation to introduce a competitive selection procedure for deputy managers in courts/prosecution offices¹¹. They nonetheless suggest that the interview of the candidate with the SCM be compulsory. As regards the Venice Commission's fourth recommendation to explicitly provide in the Justice Laws that the judicial police do not report on their activity to the Minister of Interior, the experts suggest inserting this in an upcoming law that would regulate the organisation and functioning of the judicial police¹². The Ministry of Justice has indicated that its priority for now is to ensure the stability of the reform and the implementation of the Justice Laws. It considers that an evaluation of the Justice Laws is needed, together with the judiciary, before adjusting them, after a reasonable period of time of implementation and in light also of the expert panel's conclusions¹³. Consultations with the judiciary have started¹⁴. The

¹² The Justice Laws provide for this special law to be adopted: see Art. 70(5) of the Law on Judicial Organisation provides: 'The organisation and functioning of the judicial police shall be established by special law'. The Ministry of Justice confirmed that work is ongoing on drafting this law, without confirming that a provision would provide for the amendment mentioned.

implementation of these recommendations would further improve the safeguards set down in the Justice Laws. As following the publication of the expert panel's report, the Ministry of Justice is now engaging in consultations and evaluations in view of further improving the Justice Laws at a next opportunity, some further progress has been made on the recommendation made in the 2023 Rule of Law Report.

Several additional steps have been taken to ensure the effective implementation of the Justice Laws, which came into force in December 2022. The High Court of Cassation and Justice (HCCJ) was granted additional resources to implement its new task of managing the budget for all judicial instances, thus contributing to the independence of the judiciary¹⁵. Middle management prosecutors were appointed¹⁶ and competitions for the recruitment of other magistrates were organised¹⁷. The Plenum of the Superior Council of Magistracy (SCM) elected a new President and Vice-President¹⁸. The SCM adopted a series of regulations to implement the new procedures provided for in the Justice Laws¹⁹.

A number of disciplinary sanctions imposed by the Superior Council of Magistracy were subsequently annulled by the High Court of Cassation and Justice. The 2023 Rule of Law Report took note of concerns regarding some cases of disciplinary sanctions in relation to certain magistrates²⁰. According to stakeholders, the SCM's practice does not always follow the standards set by the HCCJ²¹ and a few disciplinary sanctions continue to raise concerns²². Redress through judicial review remains an efficient legal safeguard²³, with

¹⁶ Two procedures for the appointment of middle management prosecutors (1 - deputies of Prosecutor General of the Prosecutor's office of the HCCJ and deputy chief prosecutors of DNA and DIICOT; 2 - chiefs of section in the Prosecutor's office of the HCCJ, in the DNA and in DIICOT) were finalised and 13 positions were filled. In two instances the SCM gave a negative opinion (SCM opinions are consultative and non-binding). The two candidates were reinterviewed according to the procedure established by law and the Minister of Justice confirmed their nominations. The interviews were made public. Input from Romania to the 2024 Rule of Law Report, p. 3. Some magistrates' associations and NGOs consider that nominations in the judiciary are still 'controlled by a handful of people'. Milestone 423 will be assessed under the 4th payment request expected in 2024. See Annex to Council Implementing Decision 15833/23, p. 527.

several cases of sanctions being deemed unjustified and eventually annulled by the HCCJ²⁴. Such procedures however take time and do not have a suspensive effect, and they could have a potential chilling effect on magistrates²⁵. In one case, the European Court of Human Rights held that the Romanian courts had violated Article 10 (freedom of expression) of the European Convention on Human Rights²⁶. The Judicial Inspectorate is improving transparency of its work, notably by publishing reports on the checks and controls it carries out and by publishing data on disciplinary actions on their website²⁷. The data show that many of the disciplinary actions are opened for failure to settle cases promptly or for repeated delay in the performance of work²⁸. Some magistrates expressed concerns about investigations being launched against them for political reasons²⁹. By contrast, civil society organisations pointed to two cases that have generated media attention and voiced concerns about the impact on public trust in the judiciary³⁰.

Lawyers have raised concerns regarding the respect for their legally recognised rights and privileges. The CCBE³¹ and the National Association of Romanian Bars (NARB)³² have raised concerns regarding the respect for lawyers' legal rights and privileges, such as attempts ²⁴ In 2023, 45 cases were registered on recourse against decisions of the Superior Council of Magistracy related to the disciplinary actions against judges and prosecutors. 37 cases were solved. Among them, in 12 cases, sanctions were upheld as originally imposed or a lesser form of accountability was applied. Contribution from the HCCJ, included in the input from Romania to the 2024 Rule of Law Report, pp. 9-10.

²⁷ Written contribution from the Judicial Inspectorate in the context of the country visit to Romania.

²⁸ In the reference period 5 July 2023 to 1 February 2024, the Judicial Inspectorate opened 15 disciplinary actions against judges, of which seven on grounds of repeated non-compliance with the legal provisions regarding the prompt resolution of cases or the repeated delay in the performance of works (Art. 271(g) of Law 303/2022 on the status of judges and prosecutors). Written contribution from the Judicial Inspectorate in the context of the country visit to Romania. According to the SCM, such actions occur in a context of high workload in the judiciary, linked to a shortage of magistrates (See e.g. Decision SCM No 492 of 28 March 2024). to break the professional secrecy between lawyers and their clients and procedural fines imposed on lawyers³³. Concerns have also been raised regarding the repeated breach of the protocol signed by the NARB with the Ministry of Justice and the General Prosecutor's Office, establishing the payment of ex officio lawyers for their activities³⁴. In response, a new protocol between the NARB, the Ministry of Justice and the General Prosecutor's Office entered into force on 15 February 2024. An additional act to the new protocol concerning the indexation of legal aid fees to inflation has been signed in May 2024.

Quality

There has been some further progress in ensuring adequate human resources for the justice system, although for the time being there are still a number of vacancies which could, over time, affect the quality and efficiency of justice. The 2023 Rule of Law Report recommended to Romania to 'continue efforts to ensure adequate human resources for the justice system, including for the prosecution services, taking into account European Standards on resources for the justice system'³⁵. Despite austerity measures affecting public institutions³⁶, and following protests of magistrates³⁷, efforts were made to spare the judiciary including through the organisation of competitions to recruit magistrates³⁸, of transfers³⁹ and competitions for promotion⁴⁰ as well as through amendments to the law to increase the maximum number of prosecutors' posts⁴¹. At the same time, Law 296/2023 led to the cancellation of unfilled vacancies in the public sector at the end of December 2023. Some exceptions were however possible if requested by the institutions and the SCM availed itself of this possibility⁴². The number of vacant posts for both judges⁴³ and prosecutors⁴⁴ nevertheless increased during the reporting period⁴⁵. The situation is particularly difficult at the Prosecutor's Office attached to the HCCJ⁴⁶, while the situation regarding judges of the HCCJ improved⁴⁷. While the number of magistrates requesting retirement is still significant, it has been decreasing⁴⁸, and the number of judges meeting the retirement conditions is expected to decrease in the coming years⁴⁹. According to stakeholders, one of the reasons for the number of vacancies seems also to be the lack of attractiveness of the working conditions in the magistracy⁵⁰. In light of efforts made to ensure adequate human resources for the justice system, including for the prosecution services, some further progress has been made to address the recommendation made in the 2023 Rule of Law Report.

³⁸ Derogations were granted for the judiciary. After 5 July 2023, two competitions for admission in the magistracy were launched: one was finalised on 21 March 2024 and 461 candidates were admitted; one is to be finalised on 9 July 2024 (117 positions open). In an admission competition to the National Institute of Magistracy completed in April 2024, 301 candidates were admitted. Competitions to transfer prosecutors to judges' positions were also organised. ⁴⁰ E.g., 22 judges promoted to HCCJ in 2023, information received in the context of the country visit to Romania by the President of the HCCJ.

⁴⁵ The general government total expenditure on law courts per inhabitant remains low in Romania, compared to other Member States, but slightly increased in 2021 and 2022. Eurostat, Fig. 33, 2012, 2020-2022.

⁴⁶ 60,42% of vacancies at the Prosecutor's Office attached to the HCCJ on 30 December 2023 (See see 2023 Report of the POHCCJ).

The High Court of Cassation and Justice took measures to address salary inequalities and made requests for additional budgetary resources for this purpose, which were partly met. These requests were related to the full payment of monthly salaries of judges (in line with levels of salaries recognised by final court decisions in 2016) and to the payment of salary arrears from previous years⁵¹. The objective of these measures was the uniformisation of salary scales which in real terms represented an effective and significant increase in salary income for all professional categories⁵². The request was initially not granted by the Ministry of Finance⁵³, which led to protests and a suspension of certain activities by magistrates in December 2023⁵⁴. In November and December 2023, the Government adopted a number of normative acts granting additional funds⁵⁵. On this basis, the Ministry is preparing new legislation to bring more fairness to the salaries of different categories of staff in the magistracy⁵⁶.

Draft legislation reforming legal aid sets out promising novelties. The draft⁵⁷ was submitted to public debate on 19 January 2024 and adopted on 23 May 2023 by the government. A novelty would be the possibility to grant legal aid notably to non-profit legal persons protecting a general interest when the costs of the trial would be likely to significantly affect their activity. Another novelty is the introduction of an obligation for courts to inform litigants about the possibility and conditions for applying for legal aid.

Significant efforts have been made to improve digitalisation within the justice system. Romania is committed to step up its digitalisation efforts⁵⁸, as illustrated by the inclusion of an investment for the digitalisation of the judiciary in the recovery and resilience plan. This investment, due in 2025, aims to support the transition to a centralised electronic case management system. The application ‘Electronic File for Judges’ became operational in 2023 for all national courts, as a module within the Rejust application⁵⁹. Judges can now easily obtain information about cases in all courts. Litigants and legal professionals can submit petitions and documents and pay stamp duties online⁶⁰. The Ministry of Justice is collaborating on the configuration of the future version of ECRIS V, which should be fully operational by the end of 2025⁶¹. E-filing has been implemented at national level and allows parties to access their own file online, but it seems there are still courts where access is only granted upon request⁶². Online access to published judgments by the general public is broadly ensured⁶³. Improvements are however still needed regarding the availability of secure electronic communication tools for the exchanges between the prosecution services with the courts, the investigation authorities and defence lawyers⁶⁴. The new rules of procedure of the courts no longer provide for the mandatory publication on the court's website of either the decisions of the College Board of the court or the decisions of the President of the Court related to court management⁶⁵.

Efficiency

Some challenges remain regarding the length of proceedings and clearance rates. Despite decreases in 2021⁶⁶ and digital tools allowing to speed up processes⁶⁷, the time needed to resolve cases has increased from 160 days in 2021 to 171 days in 2022⁶⁸, while the clearance rate of cases decreased from 102% in 2021 to 96% in 2022⁶⁹. The workload of the courts has increased compared to the previous Rule of Law Report, notably the number of new and pending cases⁷⁰. Stakeholders have raised concerns about the length of procedures, including the National Association of Romanian Bars (NARB)⁷¹. The HCCJ is an exception to this general trend⁷². Decision No. 2040/2023 by the SCM established a maximum number of cases to be handled by each judge per month⁷³. The decision has not been applied by all courts. Romania remains under enhanced supervision by the Committee of Ministers of the Council of Europe for the excessive length of civil and criminal proceedings, and lack of

II. ANTI-CORRUPTION FRAMEWORK

The Ministry of Justice coordinates the implementation of the National Anti-Corruption Strategy for 2021-2025. The specialised anti-corruption prosecution, the National Anti-Corruption Directorate (DNA), has the competence to investigate serious corruption cases, while the Prosecutor General's office investigates all other corruption cases. There are also specialised prosecution offices attached to the HCCJ and courts of appeal for corruption offences committed by prosecutors and judges⁷⁵. A specialised anti-corruption directorate (DGA) is established in the Ministry of Interior, competent for integrity and corruption issues within the staff employed by the Ministry, including the police. The National Integrity Agency (ANI) carries out administrative investigations regarding conflicts of interests, incompatibilities of activities and unjustified wealth, and is responsible for the monitoring and verification of declarations of assets, including of all elected officials. The National Agency for the Management of Seized Assets (ANABI) ensures the management of seized and confiscated criminal assets and facilitates the tracing and identification of proceeds.

The perception among experts and business executives is that the level of corruption in the public sector remains high. In the 2023 Corruption Perceptions Index by Transparency International, Romania scores 46/100 and ranks 25th in the European Union and 63th globally⁷⁶. This perception has been relatively stable over the past five years⁷⁷. The 2024 Special Eurobarometer on Corruption shows that 75% of respondents consider corruption widespread in their country (EU average 68%) and 51% of respondents feel personally affected by corruption in their daily lives (EU average 27%)⁷⁸. As regards businesses, 94% of companies consider that corruption is widespread (EU average 65%) and 71% consider that corruption is a problem when doing business (EU average 36%)⁷⁹. Furthermore, 46% of respondents find that there are enough successful prosecutions to deter people from corrupt ⁷⁴ European Court of Human Rights, judgment of 26 November 2013, Vlad v. Romania, 40756/06.

⁷⁷ Romania has the same score and rankings as last year. The score in 2019 was 44, so 2 points lower. The score significantly increases/decreases when it changes more than five points; improves/deteriorates (changes between 4-5 points); is relatively stable (changes from 1-3 points) in the last five years.

practices (EU average 32%)⁸⁰, while 34% of companies believe that people and businesses caught for bribing a senior official are appropriately punished (EU average 31%)⁸¹.

The implementation of the 2021-2025 Anti-Corruption Strategy (NAS) remains on track. A report on the implementation of the NAS for the year 2023 was prepared based on reports submitted by public authorities and institutions. The report contains details on the effective implementation of the NAS measures. Following the approval of the report by the cooperation platforms in June 2024, it was published on the NAS website⁸². There are also other reports available online, such as, for instance, on the institutions that underwent peer review evaluations in 2023⁸³. Dedicated working groups were established with representatives from cooperation platforms to monitor and assess progress for specific objectives of the NAS, including measures for the national education and public health systems. Whereas the group on health met four times in 2023, there were no meetings organised for the education sector during 2023⁸⁴.

As a follow up to its accession to the OECD, Romania started legislative action on the criminalisation of bribery of foreign public officials. Within the framework of Romania's accession to the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD), Romania acceded to the OECD Anti-Bribery Convention⁸⁵ and became a member of its Working Group in 2023. As reported last year, Romania committed to take legislative action in response to the assessment of the OECD that the scope of the offence of foreign bribery in its legislation is too restricted and the sanctions for legal persons too low⁸⁶. The Ministry of Justice prepared draft legislation for consultation in April 2024 and the Government approved it on 18 July 2024⁸⁷. The draft law will be sent to Parliament for debate and adoption.

The number of specialised prosecutors at DNA remains stable and the authorities maintain a positive track record in combating corruption, including as regards high-level corruption cases. The General Prosecution Service continued to issue many indictments in corruption cases and courts delivered many final judgments⁸⁸. The DNA's results for the prosecution of high-level corruption cases are similar, but there is still a serious backlog⁸⁹. During 2023, Courts convicted 400 defendants and acquitted 175 defendants in

The number of pending cases was 6 085 in 2023, compared to 6 129 in 2022 and 6 076 in 2021. During 2023, a total of 132 (404 in 2022, 317 in 2021) cases concerning 651 (779 in 2022, cases indicted by DNA⁹⁰. The HCCJ dealt with five cases of high-level and complex corruption offences in 2023, involving 20 defendants, two of which were sentenced to imprisonment. In 2022, five out of 28 defendants were sentenced to imprisonment⁹¹. The EPPO investigated 13 corruption cases in 2023, which accounts for 3% of the total number of EPPO cases in Romania⁹². While there are many vacancies in the prosecution services, DNA operated in February 2024 at 86.7 % occupancy rate with 156 positions filled⁹³. This rate has been stable since June 2023 when the occupancy rate was 85%, in line with the commitment of Romania under the RRP⁹⁴. The seniority requirement to be appointed to the DNA, the workload and the external pressure, remain high, while this is not compensated by additional benefits⁹⁵. In November 2023, the Minister of Interior appointed a new head of the specialised Anti-Corruption Directorate (DGA) in the Ministry of Interior⁹⁶.

The delayed legislative response on the statute of limitations continued to result in the closing of many corruption cases and the annulment of convictions. The Constitutional Court (CCR) judgment of 26 April 2018, finding that the interruption of the limitation period under the Criminal Code was unconstitutional⁹⁷, and the delayed adoption of a Government Emergency Ordinance on 30 May 2022, filling the legal void⁹⁸, resulted in much shorter 730 in 2021) defendants were sent to trial. Of these, 481 (565 in 2022 and 2021) were prosecuted by indictment and 170 (214 in 2022, 165 in 2021) by plea agreement. The courts rendered 257 (348 in 2022, 255 in 2021) final judgments and 400 (439 in 2022, 427 in 2020) defendants were convicted. The number of files older than 5 years from the date of notification has decreased (177 compared to 263 in 2022 and 323 in 2021).

limitation periods for all cases during this period. 575 cases concerning corruption and assimilated offences were discontinued at the prosecutor's offices level in 2023 as a result of the CCR and HCCJ rulings on the statute of limitation, involving 297 suspects and indicted persons⁹⁹. In 2023, for cases brought to Romanian courts by DNA, the courts terminated proceedings concerning 383 defendants of which 364 were discharged because of their case reaching the limitation period for criminal liability¹⁰⁰. In a ruling of 24 July 2023, in view of the principle that offences and penalties must be defined by law, the CJEU set out more specifically its requirements relating to the foreseeability and precision of criminal law. It considered that the applicable rules of Union law do not require the Romanian courts to disapply the judgments of the CCR, even if, as a consequence of those judgments, a considerable number of criminal cases, including cases of serious fraud affecting the financial interests of the Union, would be discontinued because of the expiry of the limitation period¹⁰¹. However, it also ruled that Romanian courts cannot apply the lex mitior in order to call into question the interruption of the limitation period by procedural acts which took place before the date of the CCR judgment¹⁰². Some courts however considered interruptions of the limitation period between 2014 and 2018 invalid¹⁰³.

There has been some further progress as regards the system for investigating and prosecuting corruption offences in the judiciary. In the 2023 Rule of Law Report, it was recommended to Romania to 'take measures, in particular at an operational level, to address remaining concerns about the investigation and prosecution of criminal offences in the judiciary, including as regards corruption offences, taking into account European standards'¹⁰⁴. Designated prosecutors are dealing with a significant backlog of cases, especially at local level¹⁰⁵. Since the new system for investigating and prosecuting corruption offences in the judiciary was established in March 2022, two indictments have been issued (in 2023). In 2024, the preliminary investigation for one case was finished¹⁰⁶. The new system still has to show its ability to deal efficiently with corruption cases within the judiciary¹⁰⁷. As reported last year¹⁰⁸, the SCM has difficulties filling the positions of designated prosecutors at the HCCJ. The occupancy rate has gone down since the last Rule of Law Report was published. In February 2024, there were four prosecutors appointed out of the 14 posts available at “central” level (there were eight at the end of 2022), whereas 34 out of 45 prosecutors were appointed at the local prosecution offices (42 at the end of 2022)¹⁰⁹. The pool of eligible applicants is very limited due to strict seniority requirements¹¹⁰ and, as only few prosecutors apply¹¹¹, on 25 June the Parliament adopted legislation¹¹² to allow the Prosecutor General to appoint designated prosecutors ex officio, with the aim to address the low occupancy rate. Another practical issue was that the law provided for a maximum of three designated prosecutors for each local office, while the workload per office differs a lot¹¹³. The new law makes it a minimum of three, which will allow to adapt the number of prosecutors based on the workload of the respective court¹¹⁴. There has therefore been some further progress to address the recommendation made in the 2023 Rule of Law Report.

A proposal to update the legislative framework on integrity has been submitted to the Ministry of Justice, but it does not cover rules on revolving doors. As reported in 2023, the evaluation of the existing framework on integrity showed that there are gaps and that the fragmentation of the rules on integrity makes it difficult to comply and follow-up with the legal obligations¹¹⁵. The project to update and codify the legislative framework on integrity started in 2022 and should enter into force by the end of 2024, in line with Romania’s commitments under the RRP¹¹⁶. According to information received from the SCM and Prosecutor General in the context of the country visit to Romania, some prosecutors are reluctant to apply, as many prosecutors have been rejected by the SCM in the past and rejection may cause negative publicity. Under law 49/2022, the SCM does not have to motivate its decision. The circumstance that the salary for these prosecutors is the same as for normal prosecutors is also mentioned as a reason that the position is less attractive.

on 20 December 2023 ANI submitted a proposal for updating the integrity legislation to the Ministry of Justice. The proposal suggests targeted amendments to the existing laws, which would be combined in one omnibus law¹¹⁷. The scope of the proposal remains limited to conflicts of interest, incompatibilities of activities and unjustified wealth and does not cover other aspects of integrity rules. This includes, for example, rules on revolving doors which remain limited and scattered across different laws¹¹⁸.

ANI maintained its results in managing conflicts of interest and asset declarations. At the end of 2023, a series of austerity measures were taken that affect the public service generally, with an impact on ANI¹¹⁹. The low salaries are considered an obstacle to attract competent staff¹²⁰ and ANI continues to advocate for a rise in the salaries of inspectors¹²¹. ANI nevertheless manages to maintain its results of the last years. The number of finalised cases has remained relatively constant. ANI identified a record amount of unjustified wealth of over EUR 6 million¹²². The National Integrity Council (NIC) provides political oversight for ANI, guaranteeing its independence and monitoring its performance¹²³. Its 4-year existing laws shall either be unified and updated, or new normative acts shall be proposed.’ Milestone no. 431 will be assessed under the 6th payment request, expected in 2025.

¹¹⁸ As noted already with concern in the 2021 Rule of Law Report, Country Chapter on the rule of law situation in Romania, p. 16. There are no regulations concerning cooling-off periods for key decision-makers. As a result, moving directly from a job with the regulator to a regulated company, and the other way around, happens frequently, for instance, in the energy or finance sectors. Regulating post-employment interdictions is a measure under the NAS 2021-2025. In the summer of 2023, a working group took place on this topic. Information received from ANI in the context of the country visit to Romania.

¹²⁰ Information received from ANI in the context of the country visit to Romania. There is limited interest in competitions organised to fill in positions in ANI because of non-competitive financial benefits, the complexity of the work and the lack of the statute regulating the specific status of the Integrity Inspector. External Audit of the Management of National Integrity Agency for 2022 (2023), Factual Findings Report.

¹²¹ ANI has asked the Ministry of Justice since 2021 to grant integrity inspectors (in contrast to the other people working in ANI) with a special statute that would allow them to receive a higher salary under the applicable legislation.

mandate ended in March 2024 but no new members have yet been appointed¹²⁴. ANI is also responsible for the verification and publication of asset declarations. By 31 December 2023, over 11.9 million asset declarations were published¹²⁵. In December 2023, the law was changed so as to no longer allow certain public officials, such as police officers, to anonymise their declarations¹²⁶. Since January 2024, ANI no longer accepts declarations signed by hand, which reduces the risk of errors¹²⁷. The risk analysis platform to help with the verification of the disclosures is expected to become operational in 2024¹²⁸.

ANI performs the role of main external whistleblower channel and redirects whistleblower reports on corruption to other competent authorities. The law on whistleblowers' protection, which is part of the RRP, made ANI the main body responsible for external reporting. Throughout the reporting period, ANI received reports on violations of law, offered counselling and established and maintained relations with relevant stakeholders. ANI redirected the 13 reports on corruption it received in 2023 to the DNA and other competent authorities. While ANI is not competent to investigate cases of corruption, it provided these whistleblowers with aid in further proceedings, as well as counselling¹²⁹. From the legally required 15 integrity inspectors in the Whistleblowing Directorate, six inspectors were operational in February 2024 (two in March 2023¹³⁰) and no further competitions will be held in 2024¹³¹. ANI considers the budget increase of 2024 to be sufficient for its additional tasks on whistleblower reporting¹³². Actions to facilitate the application of the whistleblower protection legislation include raising awareness among the Romanian National Bar Association about whistleblowers' right to free legal aid in case of retaliation for their reporting, irrespective of their income¹³³.

This date was postponed from 2023 to 2024 in order to grant all stakeholders the opportunity to allow for electronic signature. However, and despite awareness-raising measures over the past years, there remain public institutions that do not foresee for electronic signature. ANI has therefore started offering this possibility free of charge. The deadline to submit declarations is in June each year.

further delay, rules on lobbying for Members of Parliament’, following a similar recommendation made in the 2022 Rule of Law Report¹³⁴. The Committee for European Affairs of the Senate conducted a survey that indicated that eight out of twelve Senate Committees considered that lobbying should be regulated¹³⁵. However, there are no plans to introduce such rules¹³⁶. The engagement of members of Parliament with lobbyists and other third parties seeking to influence the legislative process therefore remains unregulated, and there are also no clear rules on gifts, hospitality, favours and other benefits¹³⁷. As noted in the 2022 and 2023 Rule of Law Reports, important legislative reforms in Romania, such as the introduction of lobbying rules, need to receive clear high-level political support¹³⁸. The Minister of Justice sent a letter in October 2023 to the two chambers of Parliament asking them for an update on the implementation of the Recommendations of GRECO related to the Parliament that call for improving the overall transparency of the parliamentary process, including by adopting rules on lobbying¹³⁹. Whilst there have been some developments on the enforcement of the lobbying rules for Members of Government, this has not been the case for members of Parliament¹⁴⁰. Therefore, there has been no progress yet on the implementation of the recommendation made in the 2023 Rule of Law Report.

The adoption of legislation to improve the transparency of political party financing remains pending¹⁴¹. Legislation drafted by the Permanent Electoral Authority (PEA) was approved without changes by the Senate in September 2023 and presented to the Chamber of Deputies in October 2023, without any follow up so far¹⁴². The draft legislation aims to improve the transparency of political party financing and the enforcement of related rules. Some CSOs consider that the draft law should have provided for the reduction of the overall public funding budget (EUR 63 million in 2024, 1/3 more than in 2023) as it tends to favour bigger parties, and that the draft law should have limited the amounts that parties can use for campaigns. They also criticised that campaign contributions are only made public 30 days after the election campaign¹⁴³. In 2024, four rounds of elections are scheduled for local, parliamentary, presidential and European Parliament elections, and two took place already. There is no date foreseen for the adoption of the new legislation and the concerns raised in previous Rule of Law Reports therefore remain, including the lack of thorough auditing, investigation and enforcement of the rules and low penalties for non-compliance¹⁴⁴.

Public procurement remains a sector with a high risk of corruption, and as it is a high priority sector, steps are being taken to identify which areas and procedures are most prone to corruption in public procurement. The Flash Eurobarometer on businesses' attitudes towards corruption in the EU shows that 35% of companies in Romania (EU average 27%) think that corruption has prevented them from winning a public tender or a public procurement contract in practice in the last three years¹⁴⁵. Procurement remains a sector with a high risk of corruption¹⁴⁶. The number of integrity warnings issued by the electronic system to prevent conflicts of interests in public procurement continued to be stable over the last four years, while in October 2023, it identified a potential conflict of interest in a public procurement procedure of around EUR 1.4 billion¹⁴⁷. With the support of the EU's Technical Support Instrument, Romania aims to identify which areas and procedures of public procurement are most prone to corruption by the end of 2024¹⁴⁸. The NAS 2021-2025 also acknowledges that corruption an enabler for organised crime. The National Strategy against Organised Crime contains measures that aim to address this risk, such as identifying at an early-stage cases of corruption that are linked to organised crime¹⁴⁹. DIICOT reported that 13% of the analysed criminal groups in 2023 have used corruption to facilitate or cover up their crimes (compared to 11% in 2022 and 15% in 2021)¹⁵⁰.

III. MEDIA PLURALISM AND MEDIA FREEDOM

The right to freedom of expression as well as the right of access to any information of public interest is enshrined in the Constitution¹⁵¹. Access to information is regulated by the Law on free access to information of public interest¹⁵², which includes specific provisions¹⁵³ on access by the media to information of public interest¹⁵⁴. The provision of audiovisual media services is regulated by the Audiovisual Law¹⁵⁵, which transposes the Audiovisual Media Services Directive (AVMSD)¹⁵⁶, and the Code governing audiovisual content¹⁵⁷. The media regulator (National Audiovisual Council) is the sole regulatory authority in the field of audiovisual media services. The mission and composition of the media regulator are set out in the Audiovisual Law. The organisation and functioning of the Romanian Broadcasting Society and the Romanian Television Society are regulated by Law 41/1994.

The functioning and effectiveness of the National Audiovisual Council (CNA) is expected to be improved with the update of its technology systems. The CNA is the guarantor of the public interest in the field of audiovisual communication and must ensure the respect of the pluralistic expression of ideas and opinions within the content of audiovisual media services¹⁵⁸. The Audiovisual Law provides¹⁵⁹ that the Council's activity is to be financed from the state budget. The CNA expects to have its technology systems updated by the end of 2024, which would help it with enforcement actions¹⁶⁰. The CNA is empowered to monitor the editorial content of the broadcasters and take measures in cases of infringements. In 2022 it imposed 63 injunctions and 52 fines for "breach of the provisions on ensuring correct information and pluralism"¹⁶¹. Stakeholders' views on the work of the CNA differ¹⁶². The work on secondary legislation that the CNA has been undertaking since 2022, is ongoing and the precise timetable is not yet available¹⁶³.

While information on the shareholding structure of companies holding audiovisual licenses is now public, it still appears difficult for the general public to know who ultimately owns media companies beyond the audiovisual sector. Issues regarding the transparency of media ownership referred to in the 2023 Rule of Law Report remain¹⁶⁴. The Constitution states that the law may impose an obligation on the media to disclose the source of funding¹⁶⁵. By law all legal persons holding an audiovisual license are obliged to make public some basic information about the outlet's status and ownership¹⁶⁶. The CNA has published information on the shareholding structure of companies holding audiovisual licenses¹⁶⁷, but there are still no media-specific transparency and concentration regulations beyond those aimed at audiovisual media. Thus, it still is difficult for the general public to know who ultimately owns media companies outside the audiovisual sector¹⁶⁸. The audiovisual law includes provisions on pluralism for the television market but there are no concentration regulations for non-audiovisual media or cross-media ownership¹⁶⁹. According to the Media Pluralism Monitor, plurality of media providers is at high risk (85%)¹⁷⁰.

There has been no progress to enhance the independent governance and editorial independence of public service media. The 2023 Rule of Law Report recommended to Romania to ‘strengthen the rules and mechanisms to enhance the independent governance and editorial independence of public service media taking into account the European standards on public service media’¹⁷¹. A bill of June 2021 to reform the law on public broadcasting and radio companies¹⁷² is still under discussion in Parliament and no further mechanisms to ensure the independence of public service media have been adopted. The system for appointing and dismissing the Board of Directors of the public service broadcaster remains subject to political influence¹⁷³. According to a 2023 flash Eurobarometer, 43% of respondents in Romania select public TV and radio stations (including their online presence) as a news source they trust most¹⁷⁴. However, TVR1, the main channel of the public broadcaster, only attracted 1.4% share of viewing in 2023, down from 2.1% in 2022, which pales in comparison to that of private channels¹⁷⁵, the second most trusted source for respondents (38%)¹⁷⁶. The lack of adequate financial resources for the fulfilment of their public service mission is presented as a reason for the PSM having difficulties to provide relevant content¹⁷⁷. This is true in particular for TVR: 80% of the TVR budget serves to pay salaries and the remaining 20% is insufficient to purchase or produce competitive, informative content¹⁷⁸. This lack of funding appears to hamper the ability of the public TV to fulfil its public service mandate. The public radio, on its side, is among the top stations in the country¹⁷⁹. Overall, no progress has been made on the recommendation made in the 2023 Rule of Law Report.

Despite a strong legal framework and the application of penalties, some political parties are reported to have increased their financing of private media for political advertising. This financing, which has become a significant share of the overall TV advertising market in Romania, also affects online and local media¹⁸⁰. Journalists and CSOs report that some political parties spent around 39.3 million lei (EUR 8 million) in 2022 on electoral audiovisual content presented to the audience as journalistic content and not as advertisement and that a similar or higher amount would have been spent in 2023, mainly through the websites of TV stations¹⁸¹. The audiovisual law prohibits the sponsoring of news and current affairs programmes¹⁸², while the audiovisual content regulation code prohibits advertising, positive or negative, in relation to political parties, politicians, political messages, except during election campaign periods¹⁸³. Although the CNA imposed 5 injunctions and 2 fines for non-compliance with these regulations¹⁸⁴, these penalties do not seem to be effectively dissuasive¹⁸⁵. The law on the financing of political parties' activity and electoral campaigns sets the principle of transparency of revenue and expenditure and provides that expenses related to electoral campaigns should be notified to the Permanent Electoral Authority¹⁸⁶. Stakeholders report that some political parties involved in this financing invoke the confidentiality clauses of the commercial contracts they conclude with intermediary companies or directly with media companies so as not to disclose why they direct money to these media¹⁸⁷. According to stakeholders, the bill¹⁸⁸ to reform the law on the financing of political parties pending in Parliament would still not solve the lack of transparency on how political parties direct money to the media¹⁸⁹.

There have been no significant improvements to the legal framework on access to information. A bill¹⁹⁰ intended to update the freedom of information act¹⁹¹ is still pending approval. Stakeholders express concerns that the current law is not efficiently enforced, and that the protection of personal data is often used as a blanket reason to refuse access to documents. Some political parties have refused to comply with courts' decisions to provide data¹⁹².

Threats and instances of harassment against journalists remain an issue and commercial and political pressure on editorial independence affects journalists' work.

The Council of Europe's Platform to Promote the Protection of Journalism and Safety of Journalists registers 13 active alerts in total¹⁹³. Romania has replied to 12 alerts, and there has been progress in two of them. Journalists report that strategic lawsuits against public participation (SLAPPs) remains an issue, although the data is scarce¹⁹⁴. Commercial pressure from media owners and advertisers also affects journalists' work¹⁹⁵. In a case involving two mainstream media outlets¹⁹⁶, almost 100 journalists confirmed this type of editorial pressure¹⁹⁷. CNA issued a press release expressing its concern about the situation reported by the journalists "on whom the employers exercised pressure to eliminate the separation between commercial and editorial"¹⁹⁸. The case has been highlighted by both national and international journalists' associations¹⁹⁹. Similar issues arguably affect the local level, where journalists are afraid of losing their jobs if they do not follow media owners' directions²⁰⁰. In the smear campaign against an investigative journalist, referred to in the 2023 Rule of Law Report²⁰¹, the Prosecutor's Office closed the investigation in November 2023, arguing that 'the offences' – including the publication of stolen private photos and the presumed disclosure of evidence held by the police – 'were not provided for by the criminal law'²⁰². International press organisations criticised this decision²⁰³, which the journalist has

IV. OTHER INSTITUTIONAL ISSUES RELATED TO CHECKS AND BALANCES

Romania is a semi-presidential representative democratic republic. The Romanian Parliament is bicameral, comprising the Senate (the upper house), and the Chamber of Deputies (the lower house). The Government, Deputies, Senators, or a group of no less than 100.000 citizens have the right of legislative initiative²⁰⁵. The Constitutional Court is competent to review the constitutionality of laws and to settle conflicts of constitutional nature between public authorities²⁰⁶. Romania does not yet have an accredited National Human Rights Institution that complies with the UN Paris Principles. The National Council for Combating Discrimination is the equality body.

With persisting shortcomings in the consultation process, there has been no further progress in ensuring effective public consultations. The 2023 Rule of Law Report recommended to Romania to '[s]tep up efforts to ensure effective public consultations before the adoption of legislation'. The General Secretariat of the Government coordinates²⁰⁷ the publication and updating of information on the decision-making transparency portal²⁰⁸, launched in March 2019. This portal serves as a catalogue of draft legislative acts in public consultation at central public administration level²⁰⁹. It aims to promote the participation of citizens and civil society in the decision-making process²¹⁰. However, there are a number of shortcomings, notably due to the late publication of drafts submitted for public consultation²¹¹, and many CSOs also reported on being excluded from consultation processes

²⁰⁵ Art. 74, Constitution of Romania. The citizens who exercise their right to a legislative initiative must belong to at least one quarter of the country's counties, while, in each of those counties or the Municipality of Bucharest, at least 5 000 signatures should be registered in support of such initiative.

²⁰⁶ Constitution of Romania, Art. 146.

²⁰⁷ In accordance with Government Decision No 137/2020, as subsequently amended and supplemented, notably by provisions of Article III of Government Decision No 830/2022 amending and supplementing the Implementing Rules for Law No 544/2001 on free access to information of public interest, approved by Government Decision No 123/2002 and Article 12 of the Methodological Rules for the application of Law No 52/2003 on the transparency of decision-making in the public administration, approved by Government Decision No 831/2022, according to which the General Secretariat of the Government will develop the functionalities of the E- Consultation platform and shall approve, by order of the Secretary-General of the Government, the methodology for its use, within 18 months of the entry into force of the aforementioned decisions.

²¹⁰ The extension of the functionalities of this website also corresponds to Component 14 on Good Governance, Milestone 407 of the Romanian RRP: 'The process of public consultation and stakeholder involvement [should be] improved with a 20 % increase in the number of draft legislative acts subject to public consultation and stakeholder involvement at central level'.

or involved only at a too late stage²¹². Normally the minimum timeframe for a public consultation should be 10 days²¹³, but it is often less²¹⁴. Some stakeholders maintained that their input was rarely taken into account²¹⁵, often not published and reasons for rejection not disclosed²¹⁶. It also seems that public access to the works of the parliamentary commissions and plenary sessions is difficult to obtain²¹⁷. The use of ex ante regulatory impact assessments continues to be below the EU average²¹⁸. Therefore, no further progress has been made on the implementation of the recommendation made in the 2023 Rule of Law Report.

Considerable efforts are being made to increase the quality and transparency of the decision-making process but the use of government emergency ordinances, albeit decreasing, remains frequent. Since November 2023, the Legislative Council has been publishing consolidated legislation on its website²¹⁹. It also intends to develop a software application, which would facilitate the drafting of laws in compliance with the rules of legislative technique, as provided for by Law No. 24/2000²²⁰. The Government is still making frequent use of emergency ordinances (GEOs)²²¹, though their number is decreasing²²². This is a source of concern, including for companies²²³, in particular when GEOs are used for ²¹² OECD (2023) Civil Space Review of Romania, p. 25. CSOs perceive consultations as box-ticking exercises where they are not given sufficient time to review draft policies or laws and where their recommendations are rarely taken into account, with little or no explanations as to why.

politically sensitive topics²²⁴ and important reforms²²⁵. The 2023 Rule of Law Report noted that the extensive use of GEOs raises concerns, notably due to the derogatory rules on shortened public consultations, limited constitutional review and delayed approval by Parliament following their entry into force²²⁶. In addition, when a GEO is to be adopted by the government, the Legislative Council has only 24 hours to issue its advisory opinion, to ensure its quality²²⁷. The GRECO shares these concerns and in 2023, made recommendations to address the situation²²⁸. As required by the recovery and resilience plan, a new methodology for the use of GEOs was adopted in September 2022 with the aim of fostering good practices in their elaboration, substantiation and consistent use²²⁹. The new methodology's impact has so far not been evaluated and it is therefore difficult to determine the extent to which it has improved the effectiveness of the consultation process²³⁰. The drafting of a new Administrative Procedure code is underway, which will include provisions on transparency in decision-making²³¹.

²²⁵ GEOs have been adopted for key investments and major reforms related to the six main pillars established by the Recovery and Resilience Plan (RRP). While the authorities explained that these measures were needed for a swift implementation of the RRP, some stakeholders regretted that it did not allow for public debate in relation to these investments and reforms. See written input of Romania to the 2024 Rule of Law Report. See also contribution from the Center for Public Innovation for the 2024 Rule of Law Report, mentioning the amicus curiae position it sent with 2 other CSOs to the Constitutional Court. This document reports about the adoption without consultation of 16 emergency ordinances related to the Recovery and Resilience Facility and concludes that the legislation related to how the RRF funds are spent was adopted without proper consultation. ²²⁶ 2023 Rule of Law Report, Country Chapter on the rule of law situation in Romania, p.25. See also OECD (2023), Civic Space Review of Romania, p.21. A Government Emergency Ordinance of March 2022 expanded the exception to the general procedures on transparency to 'emergency situations'. CSOs warned that this allowed the government to classify many draft legislations as urgent and thus avoid the public consultation process. The Ombudsperson challenged the Government Emergency Ordinance before the Constitutional Court. In July 2024, no progress had been made on the case. In September 2023, three civil society organisations sent an amicus curiae position to the Constitutional Court, urging it to debate and rule on the exception raised by the Ombudsperson. ²²⁹ Milestone 411 of Romania's RRP, part of the 3rd payment request which is currently under assessment, requires the 'entry into force of the Methodology for the use of Emergency Ordinances', intended to 'specify the circumstances under which these ordinances may be used and how their impact shall be assessed (ex post, ex ante) as well as the associated procedures for their preparation and approval and the role of Government Secretariat General and Ministry of Justice for ensuring gatekeeping and overall quality control'. See Annex to Council Implementing Decision 15833/23 amending the Council Implementing Decision 12319/21, pp. 508-509. The methodology, adopted through Government Decision 1173/2022, is not creating new rules, but consolidating all the applicable rules deriving from the Constitution, legislation and other relevant regulatory acts, and describing the procedures for their initiation and adoption.

On 1 January 2024, Romania had 115 leading judgments of the European Court of Human Rights pending implementation, an increase of two compared to the previous year²³². At that time, Romania's rate of leading judgments from the past ten years that remained pending was at 59% (compared to 60% in 2023), and the average time that the judgments had been pending implementation was over 5 years and 5 months (compared to over 4 years and 8 months in 2023)²³³. The oldest leading judgment, pending implementation for 18 years, concerns the right to protection of property due expropriations and nationalisations²³⁴. As regards the respect of payment deadlines, on 31 December 2023 there were 176 cases in total awaiting confirmation of payments (compared to 215 in 2022)²³⁵. On 1 July 2024, the number of leading judgments pending implementation had increased to 116²³⁶. Measures have been taken to reduce the high number of judgments of the European Court of Human Rights pending implementation. In 2023, 121 cases have been closed²³⁷. This is the highest number of closures since 2016. Information on the implementation of other cases has been sent to the Council of Europe²³⁸. In April 2023, a specific office was set up in the Secretariat General of the Government (SGG), the Office for the Execution and Monitoring of ECHR judgments²³⁹, to deal in particular with judgments on the non-application or delayed application of national court decisions²⁴⁰. ²³² The adoption of necessary execution measures for a judgment by the European Court of Human Rights is supervised by the Committee of Ministers of the Council of Europe. It is the Committee's practice to group cases against a State requiring similar execution measures, particularly general measures, and examine them jointly. The first case in the group is designated as the leading case as regards the supervision of the general measures and repetitive cases within the group can be closed when it is assessed that all possible individual measures needed to provide redress to the applicant have been taken.

executed judgments concern human rights violations of persons admitted into mental health care institutions, in particular because they are forcibly detained, or because they are receiving treatments against their will²⁴¹. In this respect, an Action Plan was adopted by the Government on 16 May 2024²⁴².

There has been some progress on obtaining accreditation for a National Human Rights Institution. The 2023 Rule of Law Report recommended to Romania to ‘[s]tep up efforts to obtain the accreditation of a National Human Rights Institution taking into account the UN Paris Principles’²⁴³. The Romanian Institute for Human Rights (RIHR) concluded a collaboration agreement with the Ombudsman in accordance with Article 6.3(i) of the Rules of Procedure for the GANHRI Sub-Committee on Accreditation²⁴⁴, in order to allow for the assessment of the accreditation of both institutions. The GANHRI sub-committee on accreditation had provisionally placed the consideration of the accreditation of both the RIHR and the Ombudsman on its schedule for the second session of 2024²⁴⁵. The sub-committee however informed the two institutions that they will be invited to submit their application for accreditation only when all the requirements of Article 6.3 of the Rules of Procedure for the GANHRI Sub-Committee on Accreditation are met²⁴⁶. Recently, the Government has formally expressed its consent to support the accreditation of the two national human rights institutions: RIHR and Ombudsman. The UN Committee on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights²⁴⁷ and some stakeholders consider that further legislation would be needed for the two institutions to fulfil the accreditation criteria²⁴⁸. The European Network of National Human Rights Institutions (ENNHRI) expressed concerns, in a letter addressed to the Romanian authorities, about the “reported lack of an enabling environment for the operation of the RIHR and recommends to the Romanian authorities to take urgent action to address the situation”²⁴⁹. ENNHRI is particularly concerned about the financial conditions faced by the RIHR due to the lack of adequate State funding, leading to a vacancy rate of 60%, which affects expert-level staff²⁵⁰. The ENNHRI is also concerned about the inadequacy of the RIHR’s legal framework, which it considers negatively impacting on its functioning and efforts to comply with the UN Paris Principles²⁵¹. Overall, there has been some progress on the implementation of the recommendation made in the 2023 Rule of Law Report.

Draft legislation and an upcoming new strategy could contribute to improving the situation of civil society organisations, which continue to face legal and financial challenges. The civil society space continues to be assessed as narrowed²⁵². Romania is taking steps to develop the country’s first national open government strategy, which is expected to be adopted by the Government before mid-2026²⁵³. A draft law amending Government Order No. 26/2000 on associations and foundations²⁵⁴, developed in consultation with CSOs²⁵⁵, was approved by the Senate in December 2023 and is now examined by the Chamber of Deputies. It simplifies the functioning of associations and foundations, notably with increased digitalised and less bureaucratic procedures²⁵⁶. The current situation is considered as insufficient by some CSOs²⁵⁷, which view the lack of sustainable funding as further strengthening its independence and by providing it with adequate financial and human resources to effectively and independently carry out its mandate.

well as lengthy and burdensome registration proceedings among their top concerns²⁵⁸. In addition, recent fiscal legislation²⁵⁹ restricts CSO's ability to receive sponsorship since now they can only receive sponsorship that corresponds to up to 3,5% of the tax that individual donors pay on income derived from wages and salaries. CSOs can no longer receive sponsorship from self-employed persons or independent professionals²⁶⁰. These taxpayers could, before the change in law, decide to affect part of their taxes to associations and foundations, but that possibility is now limited²⁶¹. Private persons and companies are the main funding sources for CSOs²⁶². The law was adopted despite the important protests it generated. CSOs are advocating for a draft law that would prevent the dissolution of an association or foundation as a result of a public interest litigation²⁶³. At the same time, a legislative proposal from December 2023, adopted by both chambers in 2024, removes the possibility for the judge to decrease the costs to be paid by one party to the other (i.e. the lawyers' fees)²⁶⁴. In general, several CSOs reported that they feel discouraged to launch proceedings in court, in particular against the national administration²⁶⁵. This includes access the law, the public utility status, the economic activities of NGOs and the publicity, accessibility, and range of information available to the third parties in the National Register. Contribution of the Foundation for the Development of Civil Society to the 2024 Rule of Law Report, p. 20.

In addition, the Ordinance introduced the obligations for CSOs that receive money through sponsorship and other similar mechanisms to conduct a compulsory procedure that would generate a new declaration submitted along the annual financial statements.

Contribution of the Jeunes Européens France – Europe for the 2024 Rule of Law Report, p. 20.

²⁶³ In 2023, CSOs lost cases against real estate developers in court and had to pay high court costs, moral damages and even unrealised profits, which are not affordable for CSOs defending the public interest. These costs brought them to dissolution in one case, while dissolution in another case was avoided thanks to private donations. To find a solution to this kind of cases, a meeting was organised between CSOs and the Prime Minister office but without concrete results. Written information from FDSC in the context of the country visit to Romania, <https://www.stareademocratiei.ro/2024/02/23/mai-multe-ong-uri-solicita-o-intalnire-cu-premierul-pe-tema-ruletei-rusesti-din-justitie/>. ²⁶⁴ The law, if enacted, will also place the burden of proof of the disproportionate payment against the value or complexity of that specific case or against the activity performed by the lawyer to the miscontent party. That might require specialised legal assistance that CSOs might not be able to afford and impact their ability/ will to further initiate public interest legal procedures.
